I-2066 - VOTE YES

STOP THE GAS BAN
Protect Energy Choice

A natural gas ban will increase costs for Washingtonians who can't afford it 64% of PSE customers report that they have trouble paying their bills, as-is. A ban on natural gas would make utility bills rise and would cost individual homes and businesses anywhere from $40,000-$70,000 to retrofit to electric. Natural gas customers pay 33% less than those using electric.\

I-2109 - VOTE YES

REPEAL THE CAPITAL GAINS TAX
Don't Punish Innovators & Small Businesses

Majority leadership wants to use the capital gains tax as a pathway to an income tax for all Washingtonians

Liberals Have Admitted They Are Using The Capital Gains Tax To Help "Open The Door" To Future Taxes, Particularly A State Income Tax: Years before the current tax became law, Senator Jamie Pedersen (D-Seattle) repeatedly said passing a capital gains tax would "make it possible" to enact a progressive income tax. In an April 2018 email exchange with former state Rep. Dick Nelson email obtained by a public records request, Sen. Pedersen thanked him for his steady advocacy on pushing for tax reform in the state and they both criticized the state's department of commerce for advertising that one reason Washington is a good state for businesses to set shop in is because they don't tax income. Pedersen wrote, "I do not disagree about the messaging from the department of commerce, but given Governor Inslee's position on an income tax, it is not surprising." (Sen. Jamie Pedersen Email, 4/29/18; Washington Policy Center, 3/26/20)

I-2117 - VOTE YES

STOP THE HIDDEN GAS TAX

The Carbon Tax = Higher Gas Prices

Inslee has repeatedly been dishonest with voters:

In July 2022, Inslee said, "This is going to have a minimal impact if any. Pennies. We are talking about pennies. Potentially, not all of this would be passed off to the consumer and what they would (pass on), would be pennies (minute 1:13). When asked if he will tell Washingtonians they can expect higher gas prices, Inslee said, "That's not true, they are not going to see much higher gas prices— maybe even lower than they are today. Look, the people causing the extraordinary gas prices are the gas and oil companies, they control the price, not me." In March 2024, Inslee said that repealing the CCA (and the capital gains tax) "would gut, would kneecap, and would blow a hole in all of these benefits that Washingtonians are now enjoying. And I do not believe that Washingtonians want to gut our funding for schools. I don't think they want to gut our funding for transportation.

I-2124 - VOTE YES

OPT OUT OF STATE-RUN LONG TERM CARE COVERAGE ACT

Give Workers a Choice

In November 2019, the voters of Washington voted their opposition to the WA Cares payroll tax by a margin of 62.92%.

Legislators who voted against the will of the people expressed their confusion about why people didn't like WA Cares:

In December 2020, Democratic Senator Karen Keiser repeated her hope that voters would support an amendment to invest WA Care funds in stocks at a later date after the amendment was voted down. In December 2020, Democratic State Rep. Nicole Macri said, "while the solvency risks (in WA cares) are real, they will occur several decades from now, so there is time to address them." In August 2021, State Sen. Christine Rolfes (D-Bainbridge Island), said she is troubled that she hasn't heard from any constituents who are excited about the programs offered by WA Cares. In January 2022, Representative Macri identified that she had heard from a lot of constituents who have been confused about how WA Cares impacts them (minute 1:26-1:38). In January 2022, Representative Thai confirmed both that there was confusion about WA Cares and that the policy as passed needed to be improved in terms of coverage.
